PART A

The undersigned, desiring to publish the work or paper (the "Work") described above in a publication of the Psychonomic Society, hereby transfers to the Psychonomic Society all of the author's(s') worldwide rights, titles, and interests in the Work described above, including the copyrights in the Work and all renewals and extensions of the copyright. This transfer of copyright applies to publication in both print and electronic form.

I represent that (a) I have full power and authority to assign the rights granted herein, (b) the author(s) own all rights in the Work necessary to support these conveyances, (c) the author(s) have not previously assigned, transferred, or otherwise encumbered the rights granted herein, and (d) the Work is an original work of authorship and does not infringe any patent, trademark, copyright, right of publicity, or any other similar right of any person or entity.

The Psychonomic Society has the unconditional right at any time after the effective date of this transfer agreement ("Agreement") to demand, sue, and recover for any and all infringements of the copyrights or other rights in the Work, whether such infringements occurred prior to, at, or after the effective date of this Agreement. The Psychonomic Society has the right to retain for its exclusive benefit any recoveries arising from such infringements.

In return for these rights, the Psychonomic Society hereby grants the above authors of the Work and the employers for whom the work was performed, permission to:

- Re-use all or portions of the above paper in other works.
- Post a PDF of the above paper on their own web site (exact replica as published) provided that (1) the paper is not used in a way that implies Psychonomic Society endorsement of any product or service, and (2) downloads are not offered for sale.
- Reproduce the above paper for personal or internal use, provided that (1) the source and Psychonomic Society copyright are indicated (for example, “Copyright 2000 Psychonomic Society, Inc.”), (2) the copies are not used in a way that implies Psychonomic Society endorsement of any product or service, and (3) the copies are not offered for sale.

In addition, the authors and the Psychonomic Society agree to permit unlimited reproduction of the paper for non-commercial use. (The intent of this clause is to facilitate reproduction by university libraries and professors for classroom use of the material.)

In exercising its rights under copyright, the Psychonomic Society will make all reasonable efforts to act in the interests of the authors and their employers, as well as in its own interest. In particular, the Psychonomic Society requires that:

- The consent of the author be sought as a condition in granting republication permission to others. In the case of a work done for hire, the employer's permission will also be sought.
- The consent of the author or employer be obtained as a condition in granting permission to others to re-use a portion or all of the paper for promotion or marketing purposes.

In both instances, consent will be sought from the author whose address is on file in the Publications Office of the Psychonomic Society.

In the event that the above paper is not published by the Psychonomic Society or is withdrawn by the author prior to publication, this agreement becomes null and void.

Signature

Date

Title (if not signed by author)

Employer for whom work was performed (if applicable)

(See page 2 for Part B)
PART B (for U.S. Government employees only)

This certifies that the majority of the authors or the primary author(s) of the above paper are employees of the U.S. Government and that they performed this work as part of their employment.

Signature  Date  Title (if not signed by author)

Name of Government Organization

PSYCHONOMIC SOCIETY COPYRIGHT TRANSFER

INSTRUCTIONS TO AUTHORS

Publications of the Psychonomic Society are distributed to various other publications for review and abstracting purposes. The Society’s publications are also sent to several companies for reproduction on microfilm and microfiche. In addition, the Society’s publications will in the future also be published in electronic form, and will be available on the Internet. Therefore, acceptance of an article for publication expressly means that the Psychonomic Society has the rights to all the normal uses of such an article, including publication in print and/or electronic form.

It is the policy of the Psychonomic Society to own the copyrights to its publications, and to the contributions contained therein, in order to protect the interests of the Society, its authors and their employers, and at the same time to facilitate the appropriate re-use of this material by others.

The United States copyright law requires that the transfer of copyrights in each contribution from the author to the Psychonomic Society be confirmed in writing. It is therefore necessary that you execute either Part A or Part B of the form and return it to the Publications Office of the Psychonomic Society.

If your paper was prepared as a part of your job, the rights to your paper initially rest with your employer. In that case, when you sign the copyright transfer form, we assume you are authorized by your employer to do so. If not, it should be signed by someone so authorized.

For jointly authored papers, only one signature is required, but we assume all authors have been advised and that the signature is made on behalf of all authors.

Authors who are U.S. Government employees are not required to sign the copyright transfer form (Part A), but any co-authors outside the Government are required to sign it. However, if the majority of the authors or the primary author(s) are U.S. Government employees and the work was done as a part of their job, then the primary author should sign Part B of the transfer form.

Thank you for your cooperation.